DETAILED ACTION

Preliminary Amendment

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Priority

2. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Objections

3. Claims 1 and 7-9 are objected to because of the following informalities: Claim 1, line 3 recites "housing a gas-treatment" which appears to be a missing a comma between housing and a. Claims 7-9 recites "HME", which should be spelled out. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1-8 and 10 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Persson (U.S. Patent No. 6422235 B1).

As to claim 1, Persson teaches a gas-treatment device (Fig. 1 below) for use with a tracheostomy tube (Page 1, ¶ 23, ll. 22), the device including a housing (10) (Fig. 1) adapted for connection to the tube (Page 1, ¶ 23, ll. 17-22), a gas passage in the housing (11) (Fig. 5), a gas-treatment unit (20, 21, 22) mounted with the housing (Fig. 2 and 4), characterized in that the gas-treatment unit is displaceable (Page 2, ¶ 24) from a first position (Fig. 5) (Page 2, ¶ 27) in which gas can flow from the tube through the gas-treatment unit via the gas passage, to a second position (Fig. 4) (Page 2, ¶ 26, ll. 1-6) in which the gas passage is substantially blocked preventing flow of gas out of the machine end of the tracheostomy tube.

As to claims 2-4, Persson teaches that the gas-treatment unit is displaceable by rotation (Page 2, ¶ 24), that the gas-treatment unit remains in the first or second position unless manually displaced (Page 2, ¶ 27), and that the gas-treatment unit includes a projection (21) (Fig. 4) accessible at an end of the housing (Page 2, ¶ 24, ll. 6-13) by which the gas-treatment unit can be displaced (Page 2, ¶ 24, ll. 6-13).

As to claims 5-6, Persson teaches that the device includes a resilient member (20) (Fig. 5) ("flexible rubber membranes" Page 2, ¶ 24, ll. 2) arranged to displace the gas-treatment unit to a first position (Fig. 5) when released (Page 2, ¶ 24, ll. 1-2), and that the gas-treatment unit is cylindrical (Fig. 4 above).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Persson in view of Turnbull (U.S. Patent No. 5647344).

As to claim 9, Persson discloses the claimed invention except that the or each HME element is of a treated paper. However, Turnbull teaches a heat and moisture exchanger comprising an HME element that is made of a treated paper (Col. 1, ll. 13-15). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Persson's device such that the or each HME element is of a treated paper, as taught by Turnbull, for the purpose of providing a low resistance to flow, a high efficiency in exchange of heat and moisture, a long life and be easily made at low cost (Col. 1, ll. 24-26).
